Crystals and Pets

Can pets benefit from the use of crystals? Of course they can! Let's take a look at how crystals can be used in healing and how our animals can benefit too.

At their core, crystals and stones are made up of atoms with rotating particles which are in constant motion. Although it may appear that it is not moving, at a molecular level, the crystal/stone is constantly vibrating or resonating at a specific frequency. This vibration is what gives it its energy, and in turn, it's healing properties.

All bodies are also made up of atoms. Like the crystals/stones, the body is vibrating at a specific frequency. If there is an injury, illness, or issue, the vibrational frequency is weak or interrupted. When a crystal/stone is placed near the body, the body is able to access and absorb the vibration that is being emitted. Absorbing the extra vibration from the crystal can raise the body's own vibration, making it stronger, and therefore it aids in overcoming the issue more quickly.

Think of what happens to you when you get a cold. Your body is under attack by a tiny microscopic virus that can't even be seen with the naked eye. Usually, the first thing that happens is your energy level drops. Your body tries to conserve energy as it goes into battle mode against the virus. It can take up to 10 days or more to completely recover and restore your energy to the point it was before you had the cold. Being in close proximity to a crystal/stone that assists with fighting off the cold virus (such as Moss Agate, Fluorite or Labradorite), can give your body an instant boost of energy. Your body immediately begins to absorb the vibration, which in turn gives it more energy to fight off the virus. The more energy you have, the quicker you fight off the cold, and recover. Animals can benefit from crystals in the same way.

In addition to physical issues, crystals can also be used to heal emotional, mental or spiritual issues. The energetic field doesn't just consist of the physical body. A being also includes emotional, mental and spiritual energy. This is known as the aura. Many illnesses are a result of an imbalance (or a combination of imbalances) in the emotional, mental or spiritual levels. If that imbalance remains, eventually it shows up in the physical level. Have you ever gotten a headache because you were stressed out? The stress (or imbalance in your emotional field) was the cause, the headache was the end result (in the physical field). The really cool thing about crystals/stones is that they don't care where the imbalance is. Their vibration is simply absorbed where it is needed, no matter what the energetic level.

If you've read previous newsletters, you know that animals are complex beings with their own thoughts and opinions, but also emotions, worries, fears, likes and dislikes. Although their worries may not be the same, those worries can still create issues in their bodies. Plus they tend to take on our issues because they love us so deeply. For this reason, I wanted to have a line of crystal pendants designed specifically for our pets to keep them healthy and happy. While the pendants are designed to be worn on the collar, they can also be placed in an area your pet frequents (such as their bed/blanket) to get the vibrational benefits of the crystal. Just don't let them snack on it as there is no benefit in eating the crystals.
